

FIGURE 2
BACK PERSPECTIVE VIEW

FIG. 3 is a perspective view of the components of the system, showing the arrangement of the components and the interconnections between them. The components are arranged in a rectangular array, with the interconnections being made by a series of wires or cables. The components are labeled with numbers, and the interconnections are labeled with letters.

FIGURE 3
FRONT PERSPECTIVE VIEW OF COMPONENTS

FIGURE 4

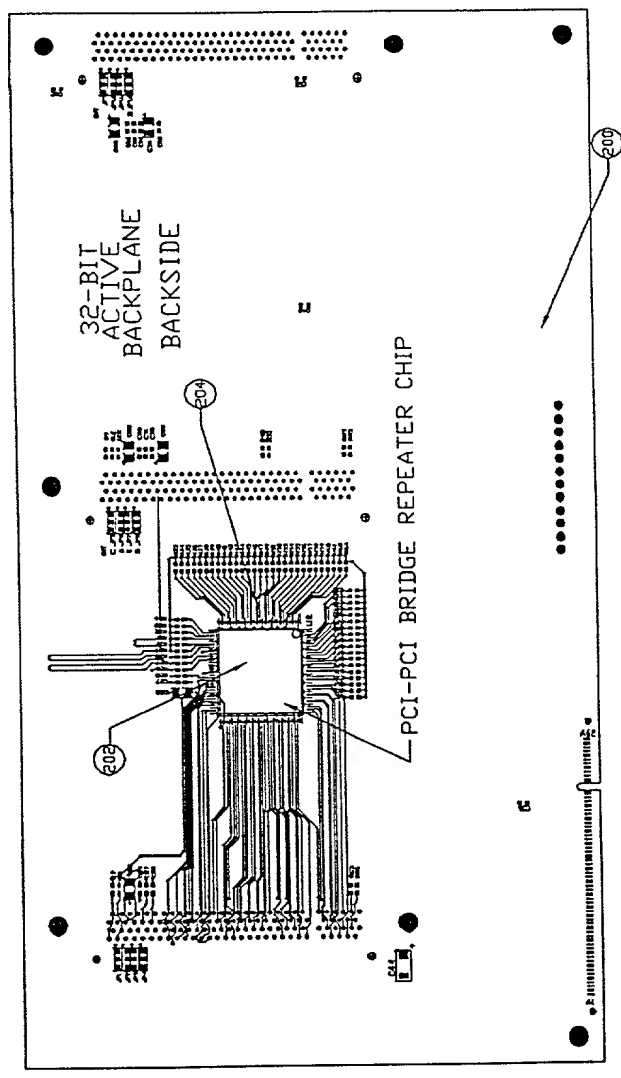

FIGURE-4

1. The first step in the process is to determine the requirements for the system. This includes identifying the hardware and software components that will be used, and the specific functions that the system must perform.

Figure-5